CONTINUATION OF THE INVESTIGATION OONTINUATION OF THE INVESTIGATION OF THE GAS TEUST WORKS.—The Trustees of the Philadelphia Gas Works are playing an open and shut game with the Committee of which Cotonel Page is Chairmar. Before that Committee the principal officers of the Trust have beer subpernaed. Some have refused to obey the summons, and the rest have insuited the Committee, and retused to testify. Two exceptions only were made. One was Mr. Riley, the cashier, He came to the Committee and said he would answer any questions and swear to them after they were shown him in print. The other was they were shown him in print. The other was Charles Thompson Jones. He is the honored President of the Works, and gave evidence with willingness and courtesy.

The Committee has a sub-committee. It is composed of Colonel Page and Colonel Henry W. Gray. Its duties are to investigate the books, papers, and contracts of the Trust, to examine the prices paid for the material, and to examine the prices paid for the material, and to verify the contracts of the Board. Its duty is simply clerical. When it was appointed, the Trust appointed a sub-committee of its members to lay before Colonels Page and Gray the papers, minutes, and contracts they desired to inspect.

Last night the Committee held a meeting in Select Council chamber. Every member attended. Lawrence Sheddscher, a very intelligent German, was put upon the stand. He spoke partly in German and partly in English, Colonel Gray interpreting his German responses. Mr. Sheddscher has a terra-cotta manufactory at No. 1742 North Eleventh street. He made the terra-cotta stop-cock boxes which were the terra-cotta stop-cock boxes which were some time since substituted by the Trust for the wooden ones formerly in use. He made them for Mr. George W. Mclivaire, who made a contract with Mr. Manuel, for the Trust, for the same. The boxes were of three sizes, targe, medium, and small. For these were paid prices, respectively, fifty, forty-five, and forty cents each. Mr. Sheddacher delivered them at the Works. For them the Trust paid $1.30 each, 425 per cent advance. Thirty-three hundred and thirty-four boxes were furnished. Four hundred more are in the kiln now drying for the use of

Thomas M. Newbold, of the firm of Newbold, Son & Aertsen, was examined about the Cameron coal contract. The leak in that big item has not been discovered. If perseverance and honest duty to the public can reveal it, it will be made manifest. Forty thousand tons of bad coal were purchased, but the hidden history of that purchase cannot be given. Mr. Newbold simply is the banker of the company. From the Trust he collects the money due the company, and remits it. So he stated, and retired. Peter B. Melick, Esq., was examined. He lives in Nineteenth street, near Green, and makes terra-cotta ware. He said that he knew the boxes furnished under McIlvaine's contract. He saw them at the office and in the hands of Thomas M. Newbold, of the firm of Newbold

He saw them at the office and in the hands of the workmen. He valued them at fifty cents each, and said he could furnish a better article for sixty cents, and clear twenty-five per cent. He said that between extra brick and No. 1 brick, used in retoris, there is no difference. If there be, the No. 1 is better. They could have been turnished in 1865 for sixty dollars a thousand. For 1865, Colonel Page, reading from the Trust's contract with John A. Newkumet & Co., said the Gas Works paid ninety dollars.

The most important witness of the evening was then called. This was Wilson Loughridge, Esq., of No. 2238 Vine street. Mr. Loughridge is treatified that he was at one time, in the employ Esq., of No. 2238 vine street. All too employ testified that he was at one time in the employ of Mr. Newkumet, and afterwards had a manu-tactory of his own at Beach and Poplar streets. He tried to furnish the Trust with fire-brick. For that purpose he waited upon Mr. Manuel. That officer would not listen to him. He went every day in one month, in 1865, and offered to supply the Trust with fire-brick. Mr. Manuel wouldn't accept the proffer.

Then he offered to put in his bricks and erect them in a retort at his own expense, so that the bricks could be tested. Mr. Manuel declined to allow him to make the experiment. Finally, he met Mr. Charles Miller, a Trustee of the works, in the street. Mr. Miller gave him an order to the engineer to use the bricks, but the engineer said that the order wasn't strong enough, and refused again.

Mr. Loughridge didn't despair. He knew the character of his ware, and wanted the lucrative patronage of the Gas Works. So Mr. Lough-ridge went to Sheriff Howell, and received a letter to President Jones. Accompanied by his salesman, Mr. Patterson, and also by Mr. Samuel Fox, he found Mr. Jones at his office, That gentleman declined to listen to him. Mr. Jones wouldn't even receive a bid or listen to the price at which Mr. Loughridge presented his bricks, and after an hour of fruitless application that attempt was abandoned.

Now for the funny part of this witness' story, and it is funny. The Trustees can see where the joke lies. It is this:—A man came to the establish-ment of Mr. Loughridge and ordered twenty thousand bricks. He signed his name Lister, and went away. When the bricks were ready he called, removed them, and ordered sixty thousand more. They were all No. 1 brick, and firty dollars per thousand was the price. The witness supposed the bricks were going to a Southern market. He went into the Gas Works to see Mr. Archy Curry on business, and there were his twenty thousand bricks, stamped with his own name, on the floor of the Works. Mr. Lister didn't come back after the other sixty thousand. A mice was smelled somewhere, and the bricks were never taken away.

The witness tried afterwards, but could not sell the Trust bricks. He offered them at fifty dollars, but Mr. Manuel would not accept. He pledged himself to guarantee the bricks, but he was turned away.

Colonel Page stated that for these bricks the Trust paid ninety dollars. He asked Mr. Loughridge what he thought of the prices paid by the Trust for bottom tiles at $1:23 each in 1864; $1:50, $2:20, and $2:42, in 1865; of top tile at $1:25 to $2:06, and shield tile at sixty to seventy-five cente, Mr. Loughridge answered that they were very high. He stated that so well were his wares received that Mr. Newkumet bought him out, but could be get the prices for fire-brick paid by the Trust, he would go into business again before to-night, and have fifty wagons at his door

Mr. James Peoples, who for fifteen years worked in the Point Breeze Works, and who previously narrated the official negligence and culpability displayed there, was again put upon the witness sland. He described the neavy "blow" that occurred there in 1864. Mr. Stewart was then engineer. He found himself unable to procure from retorts, and ordered clay. To render these available, he shortened the pipes that lead from the retort into the holder. These pipes are called hydraulic mains. The gas from the retort passes through them into the recep-tacle where it is stored. Mr. Stewart reduced the length a little, and when the time came to erect retorts iron ones were unexpectedly re-ceived. Mr. Stewart put them up. The men fired a set of benches, and the hydra-up main fired a set of benches, and the hydranic main wouldn't work. Gas couldn't go through it, and the fids of the retorts were forced off and the gas blew out into the house.

The workmen fired ten more sets of benches. This made the blow fearful; and the powering gas escaping from the raised lids experied the men from the house. The cause was, inquired into, and the blame universally placed upon the engineer for contracting the main, Matters went on for a time and grew no better. Mr. Peoples, who knew more about the Works, and pocket, opened a vaive which was half closed, and the blow was never more heard of.

Mr. Peoples narrated what everybody knows, that all the good men in the retort-houses were turned out to make room for political favorites, and that the men were paid when they were not on duty. ere not on duty.

Now comes the most alarming feature of all this examination. The evidence above given shows what will be developed if Colonel Page goes on. Colonel Gray, who has officially aided the inquiry, will leave Councils on the first of the new year. To relard the examination till then and overthrow the Committee is the Trustees aim. Their sub committee vill not give any more books or papers to the inspection of Colonel Fage. He and Colonel Gray went to the Gas Office on Tuesday last to meet the Trustees, and they were not about. Mr. Hliey, cashier, said they would not be there. The two Select Councilmen waited half an hour, and Mr. Graeff came in at a bad moment, for he was cornered. He declined to produce any papers, because his

He declined to produce any papers, because his colleagues were not there. Yesterday, by second appointment, Colonel Gray went to the office. Colonel Page, who had just left, had been told that no Trustees would be there. The excuse then was that Chie Clerk Brown has charge of all the records, and Mr. Brown was away paying the men. The Committee of the Trustees also told Colonel Page that no meeting can be held until week after next. Then, of course, there will be no meeting either. They won't go on unloss Colonel Page and Colonel Gray are both there. Colonel Gray has for two weeks remained in the city, neglecting important personal business in Ken-tucky, that he could attend at the Gas Office, and when he attended he was treated as we have said. The English of it is this, that no more papers will be shown to Colonel Page or colleague, Mr. Gray. The Tructees don't want any more stop-cock, box, or fire-brick contracts exposed. Cameron coal might come

A Model School Edifick.—The cause of education appears to have received a new impulse, and strong efforts are being made to bring the school department of this city up to the highest point of efficiency. On the vacant lot, ninety-nine feet long by one hundred and seventy deep, adjoining the Academy of Music, on the south side of Locust street, above Broad, is about to be erected a large public school building, on improved principles, according to the plans of Mr. J. C. Sidney, architect, which have been likewise adopted by the Controllers of two other sections, and will probably establish the model for the other school structures to be built throughout the city. A MODEL SCHOOL EDIFICE.-The cause to be built throughout the city.

Instead of a single building, heretofore generally adopted, the plans contemplate several, yet forming a connected whole, whilst each room has windows on every side, to afford light and ventilation.

ample light and ventilation.

There will be twenty-two divisions or classrooms, nine in the first story, nine in the second, and four in the third. The class-rooms are separated by glass partitions, so arranged that, it necessary, the rooms on each floor can be thrown into one. Each class-room has a separate entrance and stairway, so that all chance of crowding or danger in case of alarm or accident will be avoided.

The mode of ventilation is also a novel feature. The floors of each story will have a hollow space beneath their whole surface, connecting with a flue four feet in diameter, in the cen tre of which a cast-iron smoke pipe will be inserted. The air in this flue being warmed by the radiation from this pipe, a constant draught will be created. By means of registers in the floors and ceilings, the air in the rooms will communicate with this heated chamber, and it is calculated that the atmosphere will be changed entirely every twenty minutes through-

A SUBJECT OF IMPORTANCE.—The preservation of valuable books and papers is always of paramount importance to business men and others in the community. Of the various kinds of Safes manufactured and now in use (and their name is legion), but few of them are possessed of really fire proof qualities. Most of these are filled with a moist mixture, which is injurious to the contents of the safe, moulding the books, etc. A Safe, dry at all times as well as perfectly fire-proof, is of recent introduction (comparatively) in this country. We duction (comparatively) in this country. We refer our readers to the column advertisement of Marvin's Sufes in to-day's edition of supplement sheet. Their certificates and testimonials are ample and satisfactory enough to convince the most incredulous of their entire superiority over others. Their warehouse is at 721 No. Chesnut street (Masonic Hall).

GREAT TRIAL OF SPEED AT POINT BREEZE.—The members of the Point Breeze Park Association will give an exhibition of unusual interest on Monday next, for the benefit of Mr. S. D. Sager, the lesses of the Park. Tores horses, all of which have trotted a mile within two minutes and thirty seconds, will start for a purse and stake of $900, and the trot cannot fail to be a very exciting and closely contested one. Between the first three heats, the renowned horse Dexter will exhibit his highest rate of speed under the sadole, a style in which he has seldom been seen in public; and it is believed by those who understand these matters that he will cut down the time in which a mile can be trotted to singularly small proportions, as Dexter was never in better condition for such a

COMMENCEMENT OF A COLORED INSTI-TUTE. - Last evening National Hall was crowded to its utmost capacity, the attraction being the oratorical exercises of the under graduates of the Institute for Colored Youth. The male and female branches of the Institute took part in the declamations and essays, while a number of recitations were given by the boys and girls of the preparatory department. At the close of exercises the diplomas were presented to the graduates. FAST,-Samuel McAllister was arrested. yesterday, in Market street, near Fifth, on the charge of reckless driving. Robert Gaw, a con ductor on one of the pas-enger cars, testified that the defendant was driving a dray, and drove into the front part of the car, breaking it in; the car, be said, was going unusually slow.

McAllister was held in $500 to answer. A DISHONEST WAGER,-William R. Wager had a hearing yesterday, on the charge of em-bezzlement. Defendant was employed at the Turi House as a clerk, and the allegation is that he appropriated to his own use considerable of the receipts, from time to time. He was held
